RIDGE POINT HIGH SCHOOL AUDITORIUM

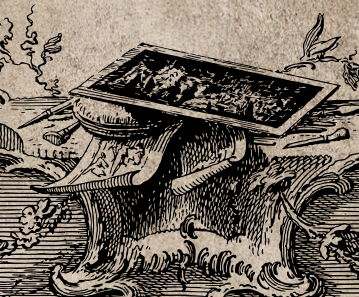

CONCERT ETIQUETTE

The program tonight represents significant effort on the part of the students involved in the performance. A part of our TEKS (Texas Essential Knowledge and Skills) includes learning how to be an attentive and appreciative listener. Please help us to foster these traits in our students by thoughtfully observing the following guidelines:

- Place all cell phones and paging devices in their silent or off position.
- Keep small children with you and do not allow them to roam during the performance. If you think your small child may make distracting noises, sit near the end of a row where you may inconspicuously step out to console them.
- Unless you are tending to a small child, please remain seated during the performance.
- Enter and exit the auditorium between pieces to avoid creating distractions for the performers and listeners.
- Enthusiastic applause is appropriate once the conductor's hands have been lowered at the end of a piece. Some works may have two or more separate movements (see the program order).
- It is customary to applaud after the final movement of such works so as not to interrupt the intended flow of the composition.

We hope you enjoy the performance!

A decorative border surrounds the text, featuring musical instruments like a violin, flute, and guitar, along with a diploma and a scroll. The border is rendered in a detailed, engraved style.

RPHS DIRECTOR

DR. S. HILLEN

Dr. Shaun Hillen is in his twenty-fourth year as a music educator, having taught at every level of development from pre-kindergarten through university undergraduate. He holds a bachelor's degree in music education from The University of Texas at Austin, a master's degree in music education and a Ph.D. in musicology from Arizona State University. During his thirteen years in Texas public schools, he taught strings in the Conroe and Katy Independent school districts. He was an assistant director for the Beckendorff Junior High full orchestra in Katy which performed at the Midwest Clinic in Chicago (2011) and at the Texas Music Educators Association Convention in San Antonio as the Texas Honor Full Orchestra (2012).

At Arizona State he taught the undergraduate string methods lab, conducted the university string ensemble, supervised several teacher candidates during their student teaching field experience, and co-presented a session on teaching strings at the Arizona Music Educators Association Convention (2015). He also taught courses in music history and culture and conducted research in Russia before completing a dissertation on nationalism in contemporary Russian opera and popular music. He has presented his work at the American Musicological Society and Society for Music Theory Conference (2020) and at the University of Rochester in New York (2022). Dr. Hillen has been on the faculty of Sam Houston State University in Huntsville, Texas since fall 2022, teaching courses in music history and world musical culture. He lives in Houston with his wife Jennifer (also a high school orchestra director) and their frisbee-crazy dog Phoebe. They enjoy exploring and cooking plant-based cuisine from all over the world, occasional salsa dancing, and escaping to the mountains each year for hiking, camping, and most recently, snow skiing!

BMS DIRECTOR

L. MASCIOLI

Lauren Mascioli is the orchestra director at Baines Middle School. She received a Bachelor of Science in Music Education from the Sunderman Conservatory of Music at Gettysburg College, where she studied violin with Yeon-Su Kim, conducting with Russell McCutcheon and Alexander Kahn, and music education pedagogy with Brent Talbot. Other violin teachers include Fiona Murray and Carla Fabiani.

Lauren is an active performer in the Houston area and plays with the Energy Corridor of Houston Orchestra under the direction of Michael Fahey, as well as various freelance and church gigs.

Lauren resides in Southwest Houston with her husband and cat, and enjoys cooking, crafting, and travelling in her spare time.
